

R.E.A.C.H. CAMP

Research and Explore Awesome Careers in Healthcare:

A half-day program hosted at University of Montana main campus or Missoula College that provides high school students the opportunity to explore the various careers in the healthcare field through hands-on activities in small groups.

Participating in a R.E.A.C.H. Camp

- High schools recruit students interested in health professions to participate on campus at UM/Missoula College.
- Students rotate through available departments for a short explanation of the program and complete hands-on activities that highlight various healthcare careers.
- Regional AHEC staff coordinate with faculty and support high school staff in determining logistics and bring in outside speakers.

Why it Matters

R.E.A.C.H. camps provide high school students the opportunity to explore healthcare careers prior to deciding on an education or career path. Students become familiar with their local college campus and the programs available,
